

Carr & Crosby's Classroom Corkboard

August 31, 2017

Edition 1

Our first week has come and gone in the blink of an eye! We hope our students had as much fun as we did! Here is a look into our first days in fifth grade...

Moving schools is a big change and the beginning of the school year is spent ensuring the students have a sense of community and belonging within their new classroom. Ask your kiddos about the following community building activities we were lucky enough to be a part of!

- Communication Obstacle Course
- True or False Conundrums
- Math About Me
- Marshmallow Catapults

Math About ME

It's important that we were diving right back into math after a well needed summer break! The students used a multitude of math refresher skills to complete math pertaining to them and their environment. Do you know how many centimeters tall you are??

Homework: We do not assign an abundance of homework, beyond nightly reading. When your child does come home with a task, it's because we believe the task is valuable to their learning. Homework Books are also a great way to communicate important information from school to home. So, please read and sign your child's Homework Book on a nightly basis.

Stay tuned for our classroom website links in the next bi-weekly email!

Be sure to check back often to see your kiddos in academic action!

Snack: We have a working snack period every day. Please ensure your kiddo brings something to eat because a hungry child is not an engaged child. There will also be snacks available for purchasing, beginning next week.
